NEW HORIZON

Dreams are pure nature, they show us the simple, unvarnished natural truth. We are in an "in-between" moment, where colors work on two different levels, the virtual and the real. We can dream of a better life in a different location, we can dream of things that don't exist in the physical world – music and words – and create dreams for other people to immerse themselves in. Technology allows us to experience a virtual universe.

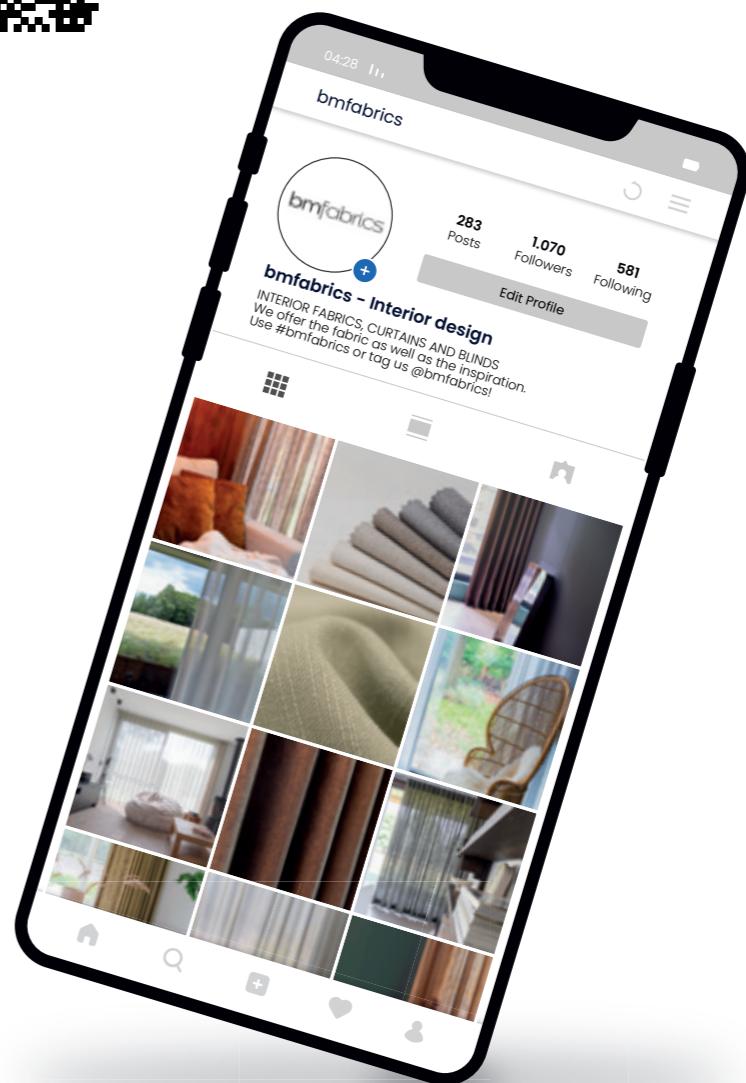

These concepts translate into our fabrics through the presence of the tactile and sensitive. Shades of gray are directly linked to construction and structure. The fabrics have an open texture and it seems that the future will be blue, a liquid reality. We are in an evolution of eco-consciousness mixing images of land, sea and sky.
